INSEN is an international network of universities, research and other organizations related with education and training in Nuclear Security. Currently the network has 141 participating institutions and organizations from about 50 countries. University of National and World Economy was accepted as a member of INSEN in June 2014, when an agreement for cooperation in education and research in the field of Nuclear Security was signed between IAEA and UNWE-Sofia. Prof. Dr. Dimitar Dimitrov, Head of the Department "National and Regional Security", was appointed as UNWE's Representative to INSEN.
